40-day peace talk timetable

Troop cut U.S. aim

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford indicated Tuesday the Johnson administration is anxious to reach a mutual troop withdrawal agreement with North Vietnam before the Nixon administration takes power.

The defense chief said he would like to see substantive peace talks start this week, with measures to lower the level of combat in Vietnam high on the agenda.

"I would still like to see, in the next 40 days, the start of the return of American troops from South Vietnam," Clifford said, "and I think that there is an opportunity to agree with Hanoi upon the mutual withdrawal of troops in that period."

The Johnson administration will end on Jan. 20, 40 days from now.

Whether there is such a troop withdrawal agreement, Clifford told the news conference, will have an impact on whether Congress will be asked for a supplemental appropriation to finance the war.

He indicated that, as things now stand, there is a likelihood that such a supplement will be required.

The defense spending total of this fiscal year which ends next June 30 has been estimated by the Johnson administration at about $72 billion.

On another matter of prime importance, Clifford made it clear that the outgoing Johnson administration wants to get nuclear arms control talks started before it goes out of office.

"I think the sooner they get started, the greater benefit there can be," Clifford said.

"Obviously, there wouldn't be any decisions within the next 40 days, but I think that if we get started now we can prevent a lag that would be a very natural one if they were delayed until the new administration came in."

"The new administration can pick them up and carry them on, I think, without in any way being restricted from what might have gone on ahead of time."

While hinting that a supplemental appropriation might be necessary unless the Vietnam fighting scaled down, Clifford announced that the Defense Department has met Congress' demands that it reduce defense spending this fiscal year by $3 billion. Robert C. Mool, the Pentagon's comptroller, said about 80 per cent of the reductions were the result of congressional legislation and that the only major program cuts were dictated by Congress. He conceded that this detracted from readiness but said it was not in a major degree.

However, Clifford disclosed, among other things, that the Air Force's manned orbiting laboratory project is being slowed and that its first launch will be delayed by four months.

Russia increases military spending

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union boosted its acknowledged military spending to a record 17.7 billion rubles Tuesday—apparently the Kremlin's response to a greater defense effort in the West.

Westerners here believe the actual amount spent by the Kremlin for defense is more than the announced 17.7 billion rubles—the equivalent at the official rate of exchange of $19.6 billion.

These observers suspect that as much as half of the actual military spending is hidden in other budget items.

Jets battle while WWS holds talks

TEL AVIV (AP) — William W. Scranton, speaking while Israeli and Egyptian jet fighters battled over Tiran Strait, said Tuesday he will leave the Middle East more encouraged about prospects for peace than when he arrived last week.

"The main reason for this," said President-elect Nixon's fact-finding envoy, "is that I have been impressed with the fact every leader that I talked to wishes to have a peaceful settlement of the situation here."

"Frankly, before I came I was not convinced that was true."

Hostilities, however, persisted. The Israeli army announced its jets shot down one of two Egyptian MIG17s they encountered over Tiran Strait, at the northern neck of the Red Sea 300 miles southwest of Tel Aviv.

Also involved are some major cutbacks in aircraft production, including a slash of 139 A7 light attack bombers, 95 Air Force F111 fighters and 20 FB111 bombers.

According to Clifford, the Army absorbed $900 million of the spending reduction, the Navy $992 million, the Air Force $928 million and various defense agencies $180 million.

Over-all, military and civilian manpower were reduced by just under 75,000 in the economy drive. Of these, 47,167 were military and 27,777 civilian employees.

spending is gathered into a single item and national defense accounts for about 43 per cent of expenditures of $185 billion in this fiscal year.

The new Soviet defense allocation was a billion rubles higher than a year ago, less than half the size of last year's increase. The 2.2 billion ruble boost in defense spending announced then apparently reflected stepped up aid to North Vietnam and rearmament of Arab countries following the 1967 Middle East war.

Although the 1969 military budget was the highest so far, it represented a small share of the total government spending, 13.2 per cent compared to 13.5 per cent in the current year.

The announced figure is essentially a token of the government attitude on defense requirements and this year is apparently the Soviet response to announced plans for a greater defense effort in the West.

The defense figure and plans for a 7.3 per cent increase in Soviet industrial production next year were disclosed in a session of the Supreme Soviet, the Communist-controlled Soviet parliament.

Nikolai Baibakov, chairman of the government planning committee — Gosplan — reported overfulfillment of the economic plan for 1968 and rattled off at rapid-fire rate a new series of growth figures for 1969.

However, he set the growth targets lower than a year ago.

The preliminary figures for 1968, he said, indicate an industrial production increase of 8.3 per cent, comfortably above the planned 8.1 per cent. Against these figures he set a target of 7.3 per cent next year.

State skiers feel better after rest

KEENE, N. Y. (AP) — Rejuvenated by a night's rest in a warm cabin, two Pennsylvania ski buffs took to the slopes again Tuesday, less than 24 hours after they fought their way to safety in a 36-hour nightmare of near-blizzard conditions and sub-zero weather.

Richard Stepp, 23, and Stephen Clautice, 21, both are students at Penn State University and are addicted to cross-country skiing as a winter sport.

Stepp and Clautice, tired but showing little stress from their ordeal, knocked at the door of a cabin late Monday, ending a widespread search.

"The two had made their way down Mt. Marcy, the challenging 5,344 foot-high peak in the Adirondack Mountains that is the highest single point in New York State.

Stepp said in an interview that he and Clautice knew they would freeze to death if they ever stopped moving.

"We had to keep going, we knew we'd die if we stopped," the stocky Stepp said. "We knew it would make us hard to find if we kept moving but we knew we had to."

They became lost Sunday night after they made a mistake on a compass reading.

The error sent them down the north side of Marcy rather than the northeast, where there is a trail. They went into the teeth of a bitter snowstorm and sub-zero cold.

"It was like a blizzard," Stepp said, "you couldn't see in front of you."

Former Atty. Gen. to lead State Dept.

NEW YORK (AP) — William P. Rogers has been chosen to be secretary of state by President-elect Nixon, it was learned Tuesday, and usually informed sources said Gov. George Romney of Michigan will be secretary of housing and urban development.

The Washington report from reliable sources about Rogers, who was attorney general under President Dwight D. Eisenhower, was not confirmed or denied by Ronald L. Ziegler, Nixon's press secretary.

Word of the selection of Romney, who briefly challenged Nixon in the early stages of the Republican presidential nomination race, came from GOP officials in Washington.

Romney, 61, made a 19-day urban tour during his presidential campaign, and consistently urged more voluntary and self-help programs for the ghettos.

Rogers, 55, long a close friend of Nixon, has been in private law practice in New York and Washington since leaving the Justice Department. In 1965 he was a U.S. representative to the United Nations.

Nixon announced the appointment of Daniel P. Moynihan, a sometimes controversial scholar of cities in crisis, as his assistant for urban affairs—and said that field now will receive the same status and attention as does national security.

Nixon said he is creating a new White House council patterned on the National Security Council to plan and propose action on urban problems.

Nixon said Moynihan, who is taking a two-year leave from his post at the Harvard University Center for Urban Studies, is one of the nation's outstanding specialists in his field.

He also has been a controversial one.

His 1965 report on Negro family life, written while he was an assistant secretary of labor, said that three centuries of slavery and discrimination had robbed the Negro male of his sense of manhood, leading to a crumbling family structure.

James Farmer, then national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, said the report was becoming the scriptural basis for new brands of bigotry.

Moynihan said the report was not an indictment of the Negro family, but "a blanket indictment of the white society that lets families live in slums."

Describing the new council, Nixon said it will be created by executive order and will be a committee of the cabinet he is to name Wednesday night. Nixon said he will serve as chairman of the urban affairs council and the vice president will be a member as will the secretaries of housing and urban development, transportation, and health, education and welfare.

Nixon said the secretaries of labor, commerce and agriculture also will participate at times.

He said he may eventually seek legislation to make the council a permanent fixture of government.

Moynihan would not discuss in detail his views on urban matters although he has written and lectured widely in the field.

Nixon confirmed one cabinet appointment—that of California's Lt. Gov. Robert Finch—but did not name the job. It has been known for days that Finch will be in the cabinet. He looked on as Nixon named Moynihan, and Nixon noted his presence, saying Finch will be named

Wednesday night to a major role in his administration. Presumably this will be secretary of health, education and welfare.

Moynihan had been rated a likely Nixon choice. His White House assignment left James J.

Reynolds, now undersecretary of labor, as the focus of speculation about a new secretary of labor.

The speculation also featured Nixon's aide and former law partner, John N. Mitchell, as the possible attorney general; Winton C. Blount, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, as a major prospect for postmaster general; speculation about the secretary of the interior concentrated on Govs. Walter F. Hicke of Alaska and Tim Babbcock of Montana, a November loser.

Cheyney hearing set, Shafer to uphold law

HARRISBURG (AP) — A group calling itself the Black Independent Alliance asked Commonwealth Court Tuesday to give policy-making power to students at dissension-wracked Cheyney State College.

At the same time, Gov. Raymond P. Shafer issued a statement promising prompt prosecution for "anyone who violates the law" in demonstrations at the predominantly Negro state school.

"Violence, terror and vandalism will not be tolerated in Pennsylvania," said Shafer some 24 hours after a disturbance by 150 students and outsiders resulted in property damage at the Southeastern Pennsylvania school.

In Harrisburg Tuesday, Commonwealth Court Judge Carl B. Shelly set a hearing for 10 a. m. Thursday for the state to show cause why the injunction sought by the black group should not be granted.

The group, which said it represented as plaintiffs nine male students ejected last month by Cheyney president Wade R. Wilson, said the students were denied due process and were "without adequate remedy at law."

They therefore asked the court to restrain the defendants — Wilson, Cheyney trustees and the state Department of Public Instruction — from "prohibiting free speech, open and public meetings and assembly, participation in student affairs and decisions which mark the course of the said institution and denying the rights of due process and of equal protection."

It also asked that the school be restrained with "abridging the right of education" of the nine plaintiffs — meaning, in essence, their reinstatement.

Finally, it asked that the college grant machinery to the students "without threat of expulsion to set the course of Cheyney State College through orderly and intelligent suggestions, discussion, etc."

The Black Independent Alliance named Philadelphia Negro rights figure Cecil B. Moore as its president.

In a parallel development, the Pennsylvania State Association of Student Governments announced plans to probe the expulsion of the nine militant students whom Wilson said were guilty of "threatening and intimidating faculty members, administrators and students and threatening to burn down" campus buildings.

Brenda Schlegel, 21, president of the Millersville State College Student Senate and a member of the state group, said if the investigation shows the students were treated unfairly, the state students group would "strongly condemn" the Cheyney administration.

The disturbance at Cheyney was smashed Monday night when two platoons of State Police moved into campus buildings and arrested 14 of the students who resisted.

Tuesday, students at the college were skipping classes to attend a student-called assembly. Shafer advised students to follow "orderly process already established for those individuals who wish to air complaints or grievances."

He also assured state police and other law enforcement officials would "cooperate fully"

Ex-Stroudsburg girl leaves campus

STROUDSBURG — Debbie Posten, an 18-year-old freshman at Cheyney State College who went to Stroudsburg High School, left Cheyney's vandalized campus Tuesday to stay with a friend, according to her mother, Mrs. Constance Posten.

Debbie, who lives with her mother in Media, Pa., a Philadelphia suburb, and is a day student at Cheyney, was not available for comment on Monday's demonstration at Cheyney where demonstrators vandalized parts of the campus and in some instances terrorized students.

It was not clear whether Debbie would stay away from the predominantly Negro school in Delaware County, about 25 miles southwest of Philadelphia, or whether she would resume classes today.

Debbie's younger sister, Karen, who lives with her father, Charles Posten at 1196 West Main St., Stroudsburg, said

Debbie Posten

Tuesday that Debbie had known one of the student activists who have been recently demanding changes on the campus.

Posten, an electro-plater at Tobyhanna Army Depot, had just come back Tuesday night from visiting his son, Kurt Leroy, who is in fair condition at the General Hospital of Monroe County as the result of a violent car crash at Stille's Bridge, near Anatomink last Thursday night.

"Debbie came up over the weekend to visit her brother in the hospital but she didn't mention anything about the unrest at Cheyney," Posten said.

Debbie completed the 10th grade at Stroudsburg High and graduated from Nether Providence High School in Wallingford, Pa., this June. Debbie, an education major, expects to teach Spanish when she graduates from Cheyney.

Stroudsburg man liason at Cheyney

HARRISBURG — William Johnson of Stroudsburg, administrative assistant to Gov. Raymond P. Shafer, is acting as liaison between the governor and Cheyney College President Dr. Wade R. Wilson during the current campus crisis.

Johnson was sent to the Cheyney campus last fall by Gov. Shafer to help quell student unrest.

Nine black militant students were expelled November 29 as a result of the fall disorders and for what Wade termed as "a continuous campaign of disruption which frequently became turmoil."

Johnson said Tuesday that open telephone contact is being maintained between the governor's office and Wilson.

Johnson said he is not directly involved in the current attempt to ease tensions and quell the outbreaks at Cheyney College.

There was no indication whether Johnson would be sent to the campus, but the possibility remained open Tuesday.

Sgt. Alex Kearns of Stroudsburg, stationed at the State Police barracks in Bethlehem, was one of more than 20 State Police from the Allentown - Bethlehem - Easton area sent to the college for riot control duty.

Enemy begins mild buildup

SAIGON (AP) — The enemy is engaged in a mild buildup of forces along the Cambodian border north of Saigon, "keeping a cocked fist" to back the Communist negotiating team in the Paris peace talks, a U.S. source said Tuesday.

"Whether he uses it is another matter," he added.

This is the area where U.S. intelligence estimates 15,000 to 25,000 enemy troops are deployed.

Two steel plants join price hike

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Two major steel companies announced price increases Tuesday, following on the heels of competitors who announced similar increases last week.

National Steel Corp. said it will hike the price of continuous hot-dipped galvanized steel sheets by $4 a ton effective Dec. 16.

National's increase is only half the $8 increase made by most of the other major steel producers, including U.S. Steel and Bethlehem.

The sheets, which accounted for 5 per cent of the 1967 domestic market, are used in the automotive industry for trim and in the construction industry for things such as roofing and siding.

U.S. Steel Corp. announced a hike on long term sheets, the same product it reduced by $3 a ton a year ago. Armco Steel last week announced a similar increase also effective Dec. 16.

Long term sheets, a steel alloy with a heavy lead content, are used primarily for auto gasoline tanks, U.S. Steel said.

They represent one half of one per cent of the company's total steel shipments, a spokesman said.

The last price increase on long term sheets was in 1965 when the company hiked the prices by $6 a ton.

Americans on record buying spree

NEW YORK (AP) — American consumers and businessmen are on a record spending spree apparently feeling they're saving money with each dollar they spend.

"There seems to be the notion that inflation has taken hold of the economy," said William Freund, vice president and economist for the New York Stock Exchange. "The expectation of inflation has led people to buy today because it may be more expensive tomorrow."

The consumer is under the influence of the longest period of both prosperity and consecutive price increases in the postwar period.

Retailers are citing record sales this year, up 8 to 10 per cent over last year. Consumers are tending to buy higher priced goods with fashion features.

In the first 10 months of 1968, the level of consumer prices rose 4 per cent, compared with a 3.1 per cent increase in all of 1967.

"Inflationary expectations are tending to snowball," said Richard Scruggs, an analyst with Goodbody & Co. He said that in October the price increases hit a record level of 7 per cent on an annual basis.

The current spending binge has come as a surprise to many economists who expected the 10 per cent surtax enacted last July to dampen inflation by taking $12 billion to $14 billion from consumers' hands.

Hugo, the Miami Seaquarium's killer whale, gives his handlers a strenuous workout Tuesday as they guide him to a special platform on which he was lifted out of his pool for a medical examination. Financier sees weakening of inflation attitude in '69

WASHINGTON (AP) — Business economists warned Tuesday efforts to turn back inflation in 1969 will succeed only if businessmen and consumers can be shaken out of their apparent certainty that runaway prices are unstoppable.

Pessimism about chances of breaking the inflationary spiral has hardened in recent months, members of a U.S. Chamber of Commerce panel said as they discussed the 1969 business outlook.

"I've been impressed with how much inflationary expectation there is," said Guy E. Noyes, senior vice president of the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. "It's gone pretty far."

And when the public concludes there is no sense in looking for prices and interest rates to drop, he said, the result is even more inflation.

But deep seated as the current inflation psychology has become, Noyes said he believes it will be weakened in 1969. Inflation hardly will be wiped out, he said, but it is to be hoped "a little uncertainty" about its inevitability will take root.

Dr. Michael Sumichrast, chief economist of the National Association of Home Builders, said housing economists have been surprised by the willingness of the public to buy homes at the current mortgage rates, averaging above seven per cent. But, he said, the entrenched nature of these harsh interest terms and the rapid increase in house prices—a jump in the median price from $20,000 to $25,000 in just four years—seem to have persuaded many buyers that if they wait they will only pay more.

And it is hard to argue with their logic, he said, with such examples of "Brazilian type inflation" as the 35 per cent rise in structural lumber prices in the past year.

"This industry cannot operate under these conditions," Sumichrast said. "The alarming inflationary trend must come to an end."

Despite all its problems, he said, the industry expects to start construction of more than 1.6 million housing units next year, a jump of eight to ten per cent from the 1.5 million units in 1968.

The panelists were in general agreement that the economy will continue to expand in the first half of 1969, but at a slower rate, with the pace quickening after mid-year. The farther one looks into the year, they said, the more iffy it becomes.

"This is a uniquely difficult time to forecast, filled with uncertainty," said the Chambers' chief economist, Carl H. Madden.

Variables mentioned by the panelists included the course of the Vietnam war, new programs that may be cranked up by the Nixon administration, and the fate of the current ten per cent income tax surcharge.

Most of the panelists seemed to share the assumption that the new Republican administration will decide the surtax has to be extended past the June 30 expiration date.

Despite the likelihood of continued inflation, consumers will have increased purchasing power in 1969, said Dr. S. L. Booth, director of research for the National Consumer Finance Association.

He estimated a seven per cent rise in personal income, more than half of it to be erased by price increases, leaving a boost of about three per cent in "real" income.

None hurt as quake jolts area

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An earthquake jolted the Philadelphia area and adjacent parts of New Jersey and Delaware Tuesday, waking scores of persons, but causing little damage.

The quake, blamed tentatively on an uplifting and slippage toward the sea of vast deposits of clay, sand and gravel, hit the area at 4:13 a.m., according to the National Earthquake Information Center, Rockville, Md.

It registered 2.5 on the Richter Scale.

Apparently the most commonly expressed thoughts by those awakened were that a plane had broken the sonic barrier or a home heater had exploded.

Others got up and their queries flooded the switchboards of police departments, fire departments, and news media offices.

The earthquake information center said the shock apparently was centered in Burlington County, N. J. It was reported as being felt far away as the Jersey shore and a Carlisle, Pa. man said it knocked over a board for a shelf he had leaned against a wall.

The shock was minor when compared to the one of 8.5 to 8.7 that struck Alaska March 28, 1964.

The earthquake information center said the last quake recorded in the Philadelphia area was Dec. 27, 1961, although it was too minor to be felt. The last quake noticeable to humans occurred June 14, 1952.

About the only damage reported was some broken green house windows.

American Grange founders

Modern world buries historic group

By PEGGY BANCROFT
Pocono Record Reporter

NEWFOUNDLAND — Has the changing pattern in the American way of living brought about the "beginning of the end" for what once was known as the Number One Community Service Organization in America?

This organization, whose name is commonly used to designate that part of a large estate devoted to the purpose of farming, The Grange, may well be one of the victims of the changing scene in the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania.

As farmland, bare as it sometimes may be in the rocky hillsides of the Poconos, disappears with the approach of second home developments and vacation home communities, interest in farming (the only prerequisite for membership in the Grange) necessarily declines.

Organization squeeze
And as the population of Greene and Dreher Townships increases tremendously every year with the coming of more and more permanent residents, there has been a corresponding increase in varied types of organizations, requiring more time for their business and social activities, so that in areas where the Grange was once the only fraternal and service outlet for entire regions of families, there are now other organizations vying for "equal time" in the scheme of things.

Community Grange 2056, of Sterling, Wayne County, once with an active membership approaching 100, has dwindled to 47 this year. And it becomes increasingly difficult to interest adults, and also to interest juniors, in Grange activities, just as it becomes difficult to fill the varied offices within the organization.

Community Grange is a comparatively new organization, having been organized in 1952. Now headed by Clifford Gilpin, Master of Sterling, it once boasted one of the very finest juvenile granges in the State.

"They were wonderful," one member recalls. "Why you should have seen them march, it was perfection. And they were active in all offices and work of the younger grangers."

English system
The officers of Sterling Community Grange, having been elected and installed this Autumn, are residents who have served in various capacities in the organization for most of its lifetime. The offices they hold are named for the English manor system: master, overseer, gatekeeper, etc.

Lawrence Simons, of Newfoundland, who has served as master in the past, is overseer; Eliza Heberling, of Sterling, is lecturer, and as such is usually in charge of presenting the program, although in the early years, many speakers filled the agenda during the meetings, bringing talks that were informative, humorous and interest on a wide variety of subjects; J. Robert Burdick, Newfoundland, is steward; Leonard DeGroat, a former Greentown resident, now of Lafayette, N.J., comes for the semi-monthly meetings and is assistant steward.

Winifred Doyle, of Hamlin, is chaplain, while Verna Simons, Newfoundland, is treasurer; Bernice Dolan, Sterling, is secretary; Fred McLain, another past master, is gatekeeper; Jean Burdick, Newfoundland, represents Ceres; Mae Gilpin, Sterling, is Pomona; Letha Schoenagel, Greentown, is Flora; Mary DeGroat, Lafayette, serves as lady assistant steward; and the executive committee is comprised of Ruth Moore, of Hamlin; F. H. Curtis, Jr., of Sterling; and Lawrence Simons, all past masters.

Storm signals

The greater part of the grange activities today is participation in the Greene-Dreher-Sterling Community Fair in Newfoundland and the Wayne County Fair in Honesdale. They have suppers to raise funds and promote fellowship (their late Winter pancake supper is famous as a "blizzard raiser," since for several years running it was the signal for the worst storm of the season); and they have welfare projects as well.

Their organization might have been called Vineyard; Garden; Field Bee Hive; Grove; Home; or Homestead. All were considered when the organizers were deciding just what the now-101-year-old organization should be called.

Grange had noble and inspiring aims, more than just providing a fraternity of farming men and women and children. It hoped to become one of the nation's most constructive and influential legislative forces; to affect the economic welfare of rural people through the sponsorship of the cooperative movement; to provide for educational growth and development of Grange members through participation in Grange meetings and Grange activities; to be a live, virile organization in the changing economic and social situations of the latter part of the 20th Century, an organization flexible enough to adjust to change.

Grange came into being in 1866, with a nation divided and torn with bitterness and a hatred born of the war between brothers.

Now, changing ways and values and emphasis may dictate that this widely-recognized organization does not hold quite the interest that it once held. But as long as the family — any family, whether home is surrounded by lush green acres of farmland or neighbors' properties — is the basis of life in America, the Grange will have purpose and meaning and a definite place in the American Life.

The winds of change, which formed the American Grange, now in like manner slowly blows away the vestiges of a family fraternal and civic organization like the soft cotton-fiber of the milkweed is blown by the wind.

Santa visits 200 youngsters at TAD

TOBYHANNA — There will be a Santa Claus at Tobyhanna Army Depot this week, after all.

He will be on hand Thursday at the depot's annual Christmas party for some 200 area homeless youngsters.

The man originally chosen for the role, William Hnatow of Scranton, left recently for a 180-day assignment in Southeast Asia.

Francis Zekoski of Exeter, chairman of the post's Operation Santa Claus committee, announced that he had chosen 32-year-old Richard Edwards for the role.

Edwards, an employee in the General Supply Division, has previous experience as Santa in Stroudsburg, where last year he greeted several hundred children at a films-and-refreshments party in the Sherman Theater.

In another production at the theater, he performed the part of Frankenstein, complete with horrible mask and long fingernails. Edwards has promised not to confuse the two roles at the depot party Thursday.

The children, from eight area institutes and the Salvation Army, are due to arrive at 9:30 a.m. Santa will appear 15 minutes later, driving up in an open Army jeep.

Entertainment will be provided by the Toby Tones, the depot's mixed chorus, and a choral group of children from Coolbaugh Elementary Center, Tobyhanna.

A Christmas dinner with all the trimmings will be served later in the depot cafeteria, courtesy of the concessionaire, Vincent Metello of Clark Summit.

Violence probe should continue

It is encouraging to see that the study on violence is being continued in Washington. Future findings certainly should be more revealing than those uncovered to date.

However, we are hopeful that the President's Commission on Violence doesn't become bogged down on last August's riots in Chicago.

There are other key issues that demand study and at least a strong attempt to find a cause. Among these issues is the campus violence at colleges throughout the United States.

Thus far, at least in all the findings made public, the Un-American issues have been forgotten or at least pushed to the background. Despite the smooth talking ability of some of the New Left, we feel Un-Americanism is a major cause of riots and demonstrations that have swept the United States for the past two years.

We further feel that a strong investigation, free of all politics, will uncover the fact that many of our demonstrations in this country are foreign inspired.

Almost daily one or more of our leaders of suspected Communist groups become equal parts of meetings behind the Iron Curtain.

The very presence of individuals who are leading demonstrations in the United States behind the Iron Curtain is grounds to at least strongly suspect that demonstrations such as those in Detroit and Chicago and campus upheavals throughout the country are inspired by the Communist bloc.

We call on investigations with all aspects clearly in mind. We ask the government to probe with an open mind and not to worry about minority groups or feelings of people who may take one side in the issue.

We ask for honest answers, answers that cover the facts, the issues and the trouble caused. Let's come up with honest answers, not answers to please the modern approach, the conservative or the radical.

Let's have answers from which an honest decision can be reached.

Football tribute

East Stroudsburg and Stroudsburg were treated to a great deal of publicity during the past season by the football team from East Stroudsburg State College.

There was a degree of national recognition gained by the Warriors and a great deal of favorable publicity on a statewide level as the charges of coach Charley Reese and company tied for the championship of the Pennsylvania State Football Conference.

The Warriors were undefeated during regular season play and captured the Eastern Division crown, including a 21-14 decision over arch rival West Chester. They also won a scrimmage over the Quantico Marines, annually one of the best service football teams.

The Warriors battled California to a 28-28 deadlock in the rain to share the 1968 conference title.

All this publicity was constructive to the area and indirectly to each of us living in this vicinity.

Now, we can assist in paying tribute to the gridiron Warriors, who will be guests of honor at a banquet to be held in the college dining hall on Wednesday, Dec. 18. A dance will follow the dinner.

Tickets are now on sale for the event, at which time each of the gridirers will receive an award.

The dinner is open to anyone wishing to attend and it is hoped that the crowd will be representative as a tribute to the Warriors, who haven't lost in their last 14 games under Reese.

This area has basked in the limelight caused by the ESSC grid squad. Now it's time for the area to reverse the tables. The tribute is certainly well deserved.

With Gene Brown

A local father was upset because his wife gave permission for their daughter, who is in the eighth grade, to have a date for a school party.

Naturally, he went around making noises as an irate father is wont to do.

When the boy showed up, a full six feet in height, good old dad nearly went into orbit.

He fumed and foamed all evening, uttering dire warnings to his wife about what he'd do "if anything happens."

Finally on the dot of 9:30 p.m. — when the young Cinderella had been told to be home — there was a telephone call. Both mother and father scurried to answer it. Dad won.

"Daddy," the daughter blurted, "the positively worst thing has happened!"

"What did he do?" the father shouted.

"You'll have to come and get me," the daughter said. "His mother came and got him at 9 p.m."

The Pennsylvania Story

Facts tell story

HARRISBURG — Partisan Republicans on occasion have taken this column to task for "picking" on Gov. Raymond Philip Shafer, which of course is just so much clap-trap. Any "picking" on the part of this column has been more than justified by events and facts as they are — not as some political crank would prefer them.

Such criticism, chiding, etc., has nothing to do with Shafer as an individual but rather is confined exclusively to his role as governor — as has been the case with his four predecessors (including two Democratic chief executives on whom this column "picked" with equal vigor).

This column refuses to gloss over unwarranted and unjustified — the unwarranted and unjustified we would underscore — braggadocio on the part of any chief executive, be he Republican or Democrat, where distortion of fact is concerned.

An incident this week illustrates the very point and this column can see no reason why Gov. Shafer, or any other governor, should be permitted to snow under the public — without firm justification.

At his press conference this week His Excellency was asked when his budget for the new 1969-1970 fiscal year would be ready for presentation to the Legislature (convening in January). Shafer's reply:

"I have set a goal of wanting to submit the budget in January, 1969. I know that this has never been done before, and we know it will be a difficult goal to reach, but we are very hopeful in being able to make our final decision by then."

On the surface this seems challenging enough and certainly worthy of a feather in His Excellency's cap for being able to do something that's never been done before.

But — "never been done before?"

Look at the facts:

In 1951 Gov. David L. Lawrence presented his budget to the Legislature — on January 16.

Look at record

The convening week of the "Governor's Annual Conference on Traffic Safety" recalls an incident of little more than a month ago when (with proper press agency straining) the Department of Revenue and the Bureau of Traffic Safety were commended for efforts contributing to the "success" of a statewide "Bring 'em Back Alive" traffic safety campaign conducted during the Labor Day weekend.

At the time, a citation was presented to the state traffic safety people by the Pennsylvania AAA Federation "in recognition of outstanding service to the motoring public during the Labor Day weekend — 1968", with the federation crediting the Bureau of Traffic Safety "as one of the reasons the campaign was successful" (according to a bureau publicity release at the time).

A look at the record of the "Success" of the bureaucratic agency is interesting. Labor Day weekend this year had the highest number of fatalities of the past five years — 38. In both 1967 and 1968 Labor Day weekend fatalities numbered 31. In 1965 they were down to 28 for the weekend and 29 in 1964.

Peek into future

What's in the offing during the next 10 years in the field of education in the Keystone State?

The Department of Public Instruction's Bureau of Statistics has come up with some interesting projections (on the basis of the way things look now, that is):

For example, basic education enrollment (elementary and secondary schools) is expected to peak in 1969 at 2,885,900 and by 1977 drop to 2,513,900. On the other hand enrollments in institutions of higher learning in the state are scheduled to progressively increase from the current 366,700 to 528,500 by 1977 (which as a point of interest compares with 223,724 in 1962).

Peace so clear

WASHINGTON — It really hadn't occurred to me that some of you might be confused about the situation at the Paris peace talks. However, in making my rounds, so many Congressmen and bureaucrats have cornered me and asked for enlightenment on the subject that I now realize there's an information gap.

And so, as frequently happens, it falls to me to explain to you exactly what has taken place, what is taking place, and what will take place at the negotiating table in gay Paris. (I suggest you take notes, as I shall hold an exam on this subject later in the year.)

Very well. To begin with, South Vietnam was not interested in talking peace with Hanoi or the Viet Cong until they stopped their shooting. The Viet Cong didn't want to talk peace until they took over the country. Hanoi was against talking peace until the United States withdrew its troops. The U.S. was willing to talk peace with anyone.

Finally, Hanoi said it might talk peace if the U.S. stopped its bombing. The U.S. said it would stop the bombing if Hanoi talked peace. The Viet Cong said that, in any case, it would fight on alone. South Vietnam said it would consider a peace conference as an act of war.

Fight on alone

Then Hanoi said it would meet with the U.S., but not talk peace until the bombing stopped. The U.S. eventually stopped the bombing and it looked as though the peace talks would begin in earnest. Unfortunately, South Vietnam said it would not participate in a U.S. sellout. The Viet Cong said that, in any case, it would fight on alone.

At last, South Vietnam agreed to attend the peace conference and talk to the U.S. and Hanoi, but it refused to talk to the Viet Cong. Hanoi said it wouldn't talk to South Vietnam until South Vietnam began speaking to the Viet Cong. In the meantime, U.S. Ambassador Averell Harriman was noticed to be talking to himself.

South Vietnam will eventually agree to talk to the Viet Cong, but will refuse to talk to Hanoi. The U.S., totally exasperated, will stop talking to South Vietnam. Hanoi, fearful that it might lose world sympathy, will ask the U.S. to resume the bombing. Italy will surrender.

The U.S. will refuse to resume bombing North Vietnam, but will continue bombing South Vietnam, as it has been for years. Realizing who the real enemy is, the Viet Cong and South Vietnam will join forces and make war against the U.S. Hanoi, seeing a chance to gain a powerful ally, will come in on the U.S. side and the war will continue, on and off, forever.

That's not a peace meeting we're having in Paris, it's sort of a peace laugh-in.

Allen - Goldsmith Report

Salvo from LBJ

John A. Goldsmith

WASHINGTON — President Johnson, while he now ranks as a "lame duck" in the White House, has some very important unfinished business on tap for the waning weeks of his administration.

Tax reform and national communications policy are among the issues still to be addressed by the outgoing president. He is expected to send Congress his recommendations on both of them.

The two subjects are among the most complicated in the complex spectrum of federal activities. In the end, however, they come down to such everyday questions as the annual tax bill and the cost of long-distance telephone calls.

Under other circumstances, President Johnson's ideas on such questions might carry little weight at this point. The recommendations of another lame duck president might well be labeled file-and-forget. That is not the case this time, however.

Congress formally requested the president's recommendations on tax reform, and a well defined telecommunications policy will be urgently needed next year when the United States meets with other nations to renew the five-year agreement under which our communications satellites were placed in orbit.

Moreover, President-elect Nixon's new Congress will be controlled by the Democrats, and President Johnson's proposals could be a rallying point for opposition to a part of Nixon's legislative program. If nothing else, the Johnson recommendations are assured a careful reading by Republicans and Democrats in the new Congress.

Tax-free taxpayers

An all but unnoticed portion of last summer's tax surcharge law instructed the president to provide a comprehensive program of tax reform by the end of the year. The tax reform rider was authorized by a Republican — Sen. Jacob K. Javits, N.Y.

A package of tax reform proposals has been prepared by treasury experts, according to government sources, and sent to the White House for the president's consideration.

One proposal would reportedly carry out the concept of a "minimum income tax" favored by some experts and embraced by this year's Democratic platform. Such a proposal would require some federal income tax contribution from all wealthy corporations and individuals, no matter how many legal tax shelters are available to them.

It would mean, for example, that an oil company could not pyramid drilling allowances, depletion allowances, capital gains provisions, and the like so as to escape all income tax, as is occasionally possible under present tax laws.

Other proposals, included in the package as sent to the White House:

— Revision of estate and gift taxes.

— A crackdown on charitable foundations and trusts which have long been criticized by Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., Chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee.

Such reform proposals always pinch influential special interests. Over the years they have been much discussed, in the House and Senate, but seldom enacted.

Global communications

A top-level presidential task-force has been studying telecommunications policy for more than a year. The panel is headed by Eugene V. Rostow, undersecretary of state for political affairs.

The group's final report was due at the White House weeks ago. Special interests are involved here too however, and the task-force has been reported under heavy pressure for a number of revisions before the report goes to the President.

The task-force is said to recommend, for example, that certain communications companies, providing limited service in the United States, be permitted to invade the domain of the telephone company, A T & T. (Up to now the Federal Communications Commission has withheld a license from an applicant who wants to link business enterprises in St. Louis and Chicago with a microwave radio network.)

Perhaps the most controversial recommendation of the task-force is in the field of global communications which will be the subject of international negotiation in 1969. The task-force is said to recommend that a single corporation own all U. S. international transmission facilities... cable and satellite.

"A single entity for international transmission would help solve the industry' problems," according to the draft report.

Almost all foreign governments assign all responsibility for telephone, radio, television, and all other telecommunications to a single entity, often the post-office agency. In the United States, however, the idea of such a "chosen instrument" has always provoked strong anti-monopoly opposition.

The task-force proposes that a single corporation, perhaps the satellite corporation, be given transmission responsibilities, with its facilities available by lease, to the telephone company, the networks and other enterprises.

Bob Considine

Up in air, again

WASHINGTON — About this time next month, whether you like it or not, you may very well be back hip-deep in the supersonic airliner business.

Don't give me that "Who, me?" jazz. You already have a big stake in that trade. There is every indication that you'll have a bigger one until, let's say, the 1980s, 1990s.

The government — which is you — has promised to pick up about 76 per cent of the tab on the development of America's sophisticated entry in the supersonic airliner market. Our titanium-clad 1,800 miles per hour superjet, which will be as long as a football field and stick over into the end zones, won't get to the market place until 1974 or 1975.

By that time it will have cost the government and the purchasing airlines at least as much as the development of the atomic bomb, about 300 times the cost of Alaska, and almost as much as the war in Vietnam costs during an entire month.

What's going to happen next month is a decision by the Federal Aviation Agency to accept, or reject, Boeing's re-design of its original re-design. Odds are that the green light will flash on.

Two years ago President Johnson chose the Boeing version of what a United States supersonic liner should look like. It should look like, he ruled, a 300-passenger (plus) plane that could fly close to three times the speed of sound, cost $40 million a copy, and have wings that would stick almost straight out on take-offs and landings, then fold themselves back against the fuselage to permit the plane to burst through the sound barrier and fly faster than a bullet at altitudes up to 70,000 feet.

Problem is that after a certain point in its gestation period the chosen Boeing design was rejected by its engineers and computers. The plane was sure to be several tons overweight and possibly incapable of flying across the Atlantic, let's say.

Everybody went back to that little old drawing board and came up with the somewhat embarrassing decision that until somebody invented never, lighter, stronger metal to handle the enormous stresses of a swing-wing, radical changes would have to be made.

General Dynamics and the Air Force people have reached the same conclusion in the case of the swing-wing F-111, former defense secretary

Robert McNamara's rather wild dream that the Air Force, Navy and Marines could ever agree on the same sort of plane.

The Navy and the Marine Corps have turned their backs completely on the F-111. The Air Force has more or less taken it out of the war in Vietnam. The stretch-version for the Strategic Air Command has little support at the SAC complex at Omaha.

The newest Boeing design will look a great deal like the original Lockheed configuration that was rejected at the end of the feverish and costly competition between the two aircraft company rivals. Boeing has come up with a fixed delta wing, as did Lockheed and the designers of the British-French Concorde and Russia's TU-144.

The foreign entries in the next stage of aeronautical development will carry only about half as many passengers as the U.S. superjet and fly at 1,500 MPH.

But they will have a three or perhaps four year head start on the American plane. In the case of the Concorde, that could mean sales of around four billion dollars to the impatient and hotly competitive airlines of the world.

Concordes will be priced at $20 million apiece. Russia's plane has no listed price. There will be few customers for it beyond the Iron Curtain.

Boeing spokesmen are in Washington preparing their case for presentation before the FAA. Their prime point will be that the proposed plane may look like the Lockheed job that was turned down (even after Lockheed spent a million dollars building a full-scale mockup) but there are significant differences. The wing is bigger and thus able to accommodate larger flaps. This would permit faster take-offs and slower landing speeds — each of which are related to noise levels in adjacent populated areas.

The rap against anybody's superjet — the sonic boom — still prevails. Unless there is a major breakthrough, their use will have to be confined to over-ocean or over-polar flights.

As has been charged in congress, years in advance of the first flight of the U.S. entry, it could wake up 15,000,000 Americans on a night flight across the country. Its shock waves would also cause extensive damage recoverable by law suit — ranging all the way from a merchant's shattered plate glass window to a farmer's aborted cow.

Albrightsville postal service

61 years of operation

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the sixth of 10 articles on post office histories in the West End of Monroe County, compiled by Raymond Andrews, a retired school teacher, who lives in Kresgeville.)

ALBRIGHTSVILLE — The postoffice was founded here on Feb. 5, 1907, when Emory Getz was named postmaster.

During the 61-year history of Albrightsville Postoffice there have been six postmasters, including Mrs. Madelyn Getz, who is serving at the present time and has been in office since Sept. 30, 1949.

The first postmaster served until May 7, 1913. However, for more than five years the office remained empty until James M. Smith was named acting postmaster on Aug. 4, 1918 and remained in office until Jan. 2, 1919.

Mrs. Elizabeth Henning was named postmistress on Jan. 2, 1919, and served until Jan. 4, 1922. Albert P. Henning went into office on Jan. 4, 1922 and remained at the post until Sept. 30, 1949.

Mrs. Martha Henning has served the greatest number of years in office, 27.

Getting into print

In a recent column I complained I had so much money wrapped up in my son's dental work that I was forced to let my YMCA membership lapse. The YMCA of Metropolitan Detroit sent me an honorary membership, knowing full well I'd do a column on it.

They ought to give their public relations director the day off for that one. If you have ever lunched publicity for your club, lodge, sorority or bazaar you know the only way to get into print is to set fire to yourself in front of the woman's editor on a slow news day.

Several years ago I did public relations for our local YMCA on a part-time basis. I had three small children so I bought a typewriter. Every morning at 9 a.m. I'd crawl into the typewriter with my typewriter and try to think up ways to get the name of the YMCA before the public.

At first I was idealistic enough to think that people would break out in a rash when they heard of our classes on slip-covering, our potato chip sales and our fellowship abroad. So I flooded the mails with press releases. Occasionally the papers would print three scrawny lines with a headline that read, "YMCA Meets."

I knew I couldn't afford the luxury of an enemy on the paper, so as delicately as possible I would try to explain the differences between the YMCA and the YWCA by sending them health charts and inviting them to view our swimmers. (We were the ones who wore suits.)

Somehow I never seemed to be able to impress the papers. One day I dug up an 86-year-old woman who painted rather well. "This morning she called and said she'd be a little late as her mother was sick. Get it? HER MOTHER!"

The photographer stifled a yawn. "We're going to have to do something different," he said. "We can't just have her standing there painting. Is there a way to the roof?"

As it turned out we got a wonderful picture of an 86-year-old painter having a heart attack on the roof of the YWCA.

I even had a gimmick for our world festival. I had my mother bake a cake the size of a car door, decorate it with a map of the world and put a marshmallow wherever there was a YWCA. I sent it over to the people at the newspaper.

The festival came and went without a word of publicity. Reluctantly, I called the newspaper and asked whether they had received the cake.

"We certainly did," they said. "The women's department ate Asia, sports devoured Europe and the city desk took in South America."

"I thought perhaps you might have mentioned the YWCA, that we spelled out in jelly beans across the top."

"You P.R. people will never learn," they said. "Never trust a circulation department to deliver jelly beans. Who was that again? The NRA?"

Honorary membership cards. ... why didn't I think of that?

Avoid older man

By JEAN ADAMS

15 AND 23: (Q.) I'm 15 and like a 23-year-old man.

After school I go to see him where he works. Once he took me to his house and tried to make love to me, but I wouldn't let him.

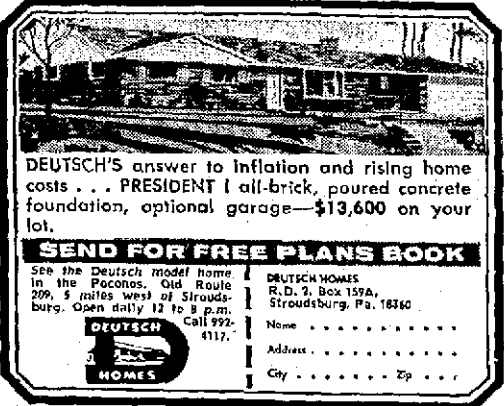

Jean, I'm a lot more mature than most of my friends, and I'm sure I'll never allow him to do just anything to me.

My parents don't know about all this. And I don't know what to do. I like him a lot and don't want him to leave me. Confused in Newark, N.J.

(A.) No matter how mature you are at 15, you're not mature enough to be in a house alone with a fired-up 23-year-old man.

Quit going to see him where he works. And either quit seeing him altogether or insist that he date you in the regular way with full knowledge and approval of your parents.

I am aware that the dating solution may not be possible because your parents may say no.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

It doesn't seem likely the crises of the English pound earlier in the year and the more recent crises with the franc and the gold drain and all, has anything to do with the way women are dressing for this year's holiday parties.

But it's definitely a silver year. A silversmith at Ken and Fran Barthold's party would have been amazed at the many ways silver was used: in mesh like chain mail, in brocade, in shoes with silver braid, for mores and bags and jewelry.

Anyway, they made a decorative whole around the table with its silver candelabra and yellow roses. Next to silver the most popular holiday color this year is white, which is also pretty decorative.

One reason everybody looked so gala was because a lot of them were going on to the Medical Society dinner afterwards. And speaking of gala, the Pocono Arts Center Gourmet Club went all out too for its dinner the other night.

Somewhat or other it always sounds more elegant in French. You might enjoy escargots when you wouldn't even try snails. And green string beans and veal sounds like anybody's dinner.

Well, you can go make your casserole for shopping days sound pretty gourmet, too, if you can borrow a student's French dictionary. And, seasoned with family repartee, it will taste that way, too.

Stroud Club talk on door decorations

EAST STROUDSBURG — Herman Luber of the Plants and Design Center, East Stroudsburg, will be the guest speaker at the Christmas meeting of the Stroud Community Woman's Club on Thursday night at 8 at the Holiday Inn.

He will demonstrate making a door piece and other decorative items for the home for the coming holidays. The door piece will be given as a door prize.

Following the program a Christmas party and dessert will be held when new members will be installed. Members and guests are reminded of the dollar gift exchange.

Santa Shop opens today

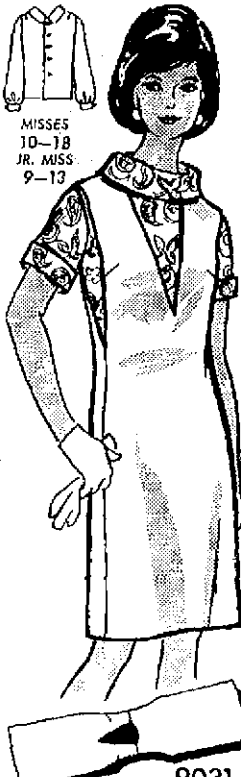

STROUDSBURG — The SPCA Santa Shop will be open for four days this week, starting today at 810 Main St., Stroudsburg, opposite the YMCA.

They will have toys, gifts, handicrafts, holiday decorations and ornaments as well as a thrift shop.

Ann Landers

Adoption obstacles

Dear Ann Landers: I was upset by the person who described childless couples as "winners" because they went through life meaning that they were not blessed with babies. Adoption was the perfect solution, according to the writer, and anyone who did not choose to solve the problem in this way was either "selfish, lazy or both."

My husband and I want children badly. We were not blessed, but then we were married later than most people (I was 37, he was 38). When we attempted to adopt we ran into obstacles which turned out to be insurmountable. First, ours was a mixed marriage. Second, younger couples were given preference. Third, I had a history of heart trouble.

Yesterday's mail brought me two copies of your column from anonymous "friends." I think I know who sent those columns but under no circumstances would I attempt to defend myself. It would help those of us who are childless but not by choice if you would print this letter.

PENNSYLVANIA PEGGY

Dear Peggy: Here's your letter and I hope your anonymous "friends" see it and learn something.

Dear Ann Landers: I was saddened by the letter about the delivery boy who was hit by a truck. However, your plea that bicycle manufacturers meet tougher safety standards would solve no problems. A safer bicycle does not necessarily mean a safer cyclist. If the National Safety Council and the parents of America are concerned, it's time they passed a few laws similar to the ones they have in Europe.

1) All bicycles must have front and rear lights after sundown.

2) All cyclists must travel WITH the flow of traffic and must keep to the inside lane nearest the curb.

3) Cyclists must give hand signals when turning left or right.

Kids all over the world ride bicycles. Americans have the most accidents. It is not surprising since they need not study the highway code or obtain a license to operate a bicycle. I've had some mighty close calls because of stupid cyclists. Had I not been alert I could have killed at least two kids that come to mind at once. I'm willing to bet the blame belongs on the delivery boy and not on the truck driver who wrote that sad letter.

M.S.S.

Dear M.S.S.: Thanks for writing. Your letter makes sense, and, of course, the truck drivers will love you.

Dear Ann Landers: Please settle an argument, and don't tell me to go look it up. If I knew where to look I wouldn't be writing to you.

Opening lead—ten of spades.
It is fine to take a finesse when you need it, but poor policy to finesse for the mere pleasure of it.

Here is a case where declarer finessed from force of habit and lost a game as a result. West led a spade and South, without giving the matter sufficient thought, played the jack from dummy, losing the finesse to East's king.

East saw no future in a spade continuation, since South appeared certain to have the suit doubly stopped, so he shifted to the six of clubs. Declarer's jack lost to the king and the club return by West established three tricks for East.

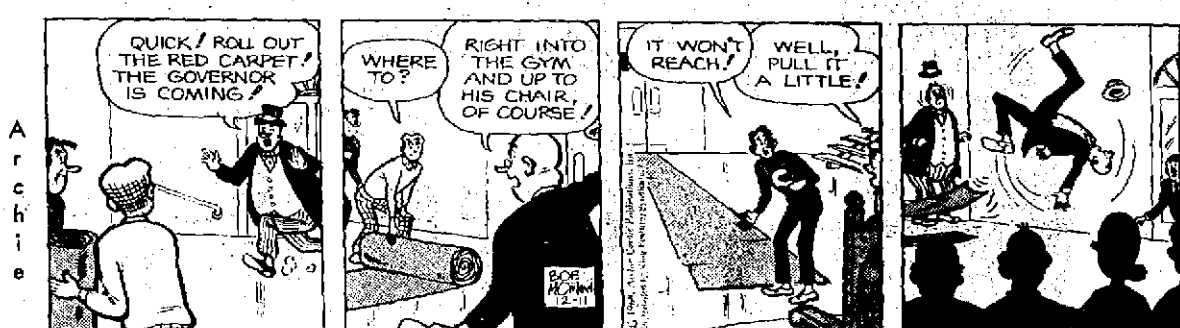

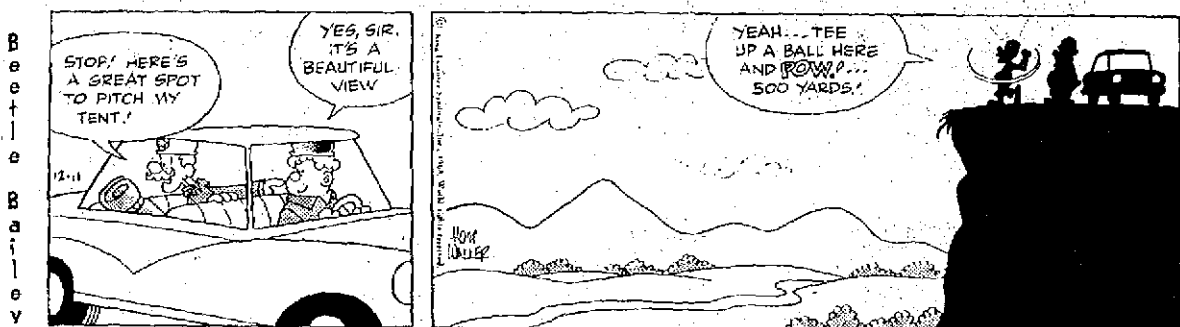

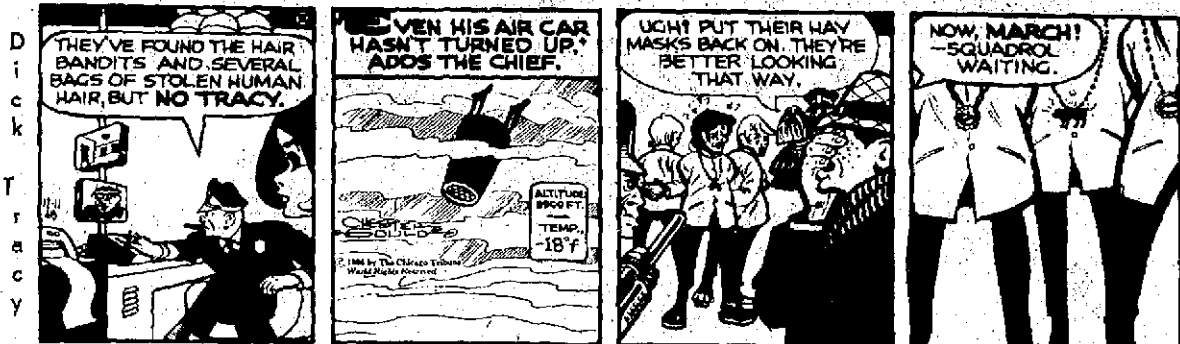

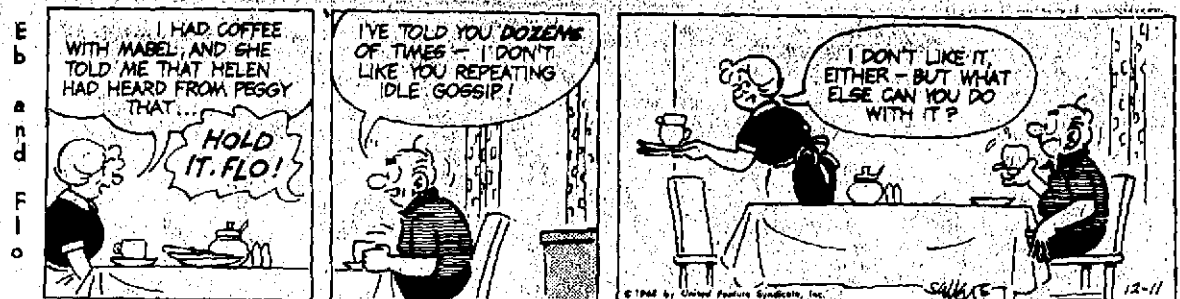

Declarer entered dummy with a spade and finessed the ten of diamonds. West took the king, returned a club, and South went down two.

A little thought would have persuaded South to go up with the ace of spades at trick one. The spade finesse was in no sense vital to the contract. While if West had the king, it definitely jeopardized the contract.

South's goal is three notrump. If he sees a sure way of making nine tricks, he should not deviate from it in favor of a different method of play that introduces an element of danger.

Winning the spade at trick one guarantees nine tricks 100 per cent. It does not matter how the defenders' cards are divided, once the ace is played. Declarer then takes a diamond finesse.

If the finesse loses, South has eight tricks available — five diamonds and three aces. The ninth is sure to come regardless of what West plays next. A spade return automatically produces trick nine; a heart return, with dummy playing low likewise assures the ninth trick; and with a club return, South is equally certain of nine tricks. As happens so often, declarer's play at trick one is decisive. It pays to plan the play.

A fire bomb was thrown through this window at Stroudsburg Area High School sometime between Monday night and Tuesday morning.

The Molotov Cocktail, a beer bottle filled with kerosene, is mute evidence of what is a serious incident. The bomb was thrown into a basement room and damaged the tile floor.

Part of the damage done by the fire was this desk-chair which was completely ruined. Police said they have a number of suspects who will be questioned about the fire-bombing. (Staff Photos by MacLeod)

The jury delivered the verdict with the recommendation to the court that McLaughlin undergo psychiatric examination.

The trial opened Tuesday morning with the testimony of young Bush, who is a sixth grader at Emmaus. Bush gave his version of the incident which allegedly took place in McLaughlin's room in the Fenner Hotel.

Only two criminal trials were held during the term in Monroe County.

During the course of the criminal trials, five guilty pleas were entered with the court. Entering the pleas were:

Kirkridge experiment in education

By FRED WALTER
Pocono Record Reporter

BANGOR — The principles of Kirkridge, established 26 years ago, will take on more definitive dimensions within a proposed preparatory school, a three million dollar "experiment in education" to be built into the 400-acre retreat-study center starting in March.

The school was defined as an entirely new concept in bringing together social action and devotion within the Christian movement.

It will link the best in contemporary religion with the best in contemporary education, Dr. John Oliver Nelson, the school's director, told members and guests Tuesday night during a conference announcing the preliminary plans.

Construction will start in March on a dormitory classroom complex, estimated at $375,000. This will provide facilities for an initial 36 student body to start the school in September, 1969.

Students will be accepted from a diversity of cultural backgrounds, especially from ghetto areas and other areas from which disadvantaged youth of good intelligence will be welcomed, including students of all races, beliefs, nationalities, socioeconomic and ethnic backgrounds.

The school will be open to students in grades 10 to 12. By 1972, some 100 students and

Army Engineers to start study of Martins Creek shed

By BERT WALTER
Pocono Record Reporter

BANGOR — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will initiate a $118,000 study of the 44.55 square mile Martins Creek watershed in a multi-purpose project designed primarily to avert flooding in the State Belt.

The scope of the intent by the Corps of Engineers was explained to nearly 40 persons Tuesday night during a public hearing in the Bangor Cultural Center.

The hearing primarily was called by the Corps of Engineers to listen in views of residents on the nature and cause of the flooding problems in the State Belt area and some personal suggestions for solution.

A total 11 persons testified, all of whom appreciated efforts by the Corps of Engineers to initiate a project which could alleviate a flood such as occurred August 3, 1967. The flood gutted the Bangor business district and caused $2.3 million damage and the loss of one life.

Col. James A. Johnson, district engineer for the Corps of Engineers, told the gathering that the "ultimate purpose" is formulation of a plan that is sound from both an engineering and economic point of view and will best satisfy your regional needs.

While the prime importance to local residents lies in preventing a flood in the Bangor area, Frank L. Sivard, assistant chief of planning and report branch for the Corp of Engineers, said that the Corps project at three million dollars over a six to eight year period. One half of this cost will be reserved for an endowment fund to support the planned high ratio of scholarship students.

Army Engineers to start study of Martins Creek shed study... will not be confined to the consideration of flood control benefits alone but will also consider corollary benefits, for example, the development of recreational facilities, water storage capacity and water quality control.

This will be done for the 44.55 square mile watershed which stretches from just north of Bangor to the confluence of Martins Creek and the Delaware River at the town of Martins Creek.

Once the Corps of Engineers has selected a plan for the watershed, Sivard said, the costs and benefits will be calculated and the local participation outlined.

Generally, the local municipalities within the watershed will have to participate in the following:

— Provide, without cost to the federal government all lands, easements and rights-of-way necessary for construction of the project.

— Hold the federal government free from damages resulting from construction.

— Maintain and operate all flood control works and recreational facilities after completion.

— Provide all relocations of buildings, utilities, highways, bridges, sewers and all other facilities.

— Provide assurances that encroachment on improved channels or ponding areas will not be permitted.

— Provide a cash contribution. The Corps of Engineers has already received $10,000 from the House Appropriations Committee to initiate the study. Additional funds are expected in fiscal 1970. Sivard said the study could be completed in 1971 if funds are readily available. The entire project, it was explained, will take five years before it enters into the construction phase.

"This may seem like a long time to wait for action," Sivard said, "however, experience has shown that there is a minimum of five years between initiation of a study and appropriation of construction money."

In addition to the 11 persons who testified, a letter was read from Gov. Raymond P. Shafer.

Gov. Shafer said, "...I am most anxious to see this study started and I am hopeful that the Corps of Engineers will be able to develop a plan which can implement much needed flood control measures."

An aide to State Secretary of Forests and Waters Maurice Goddard also presented a copy of testimony from Goddard.

Goddard's testimony cited that the Corps should explore upstream detention and that, "In the event that upstream detention becomes a part of the final plan, we recommend that the possibility of a multi-purpose structure be considered."

State Representative Philip Ruggiero from the 137th Representative District, in his remarks, urged that the Martins Creek channel be widened at all points and deepened.

Bangor Mayor William Scott said he hopes the project "can move along."

The Kirkridge board, a non-denominational policy-forming group had discussed the school for the past three years.

David T. Johnson, the school's executive officer said "we feel there will be some fresh departures here in an 'educating', not 'educational, community' to foster linkage in bridging the gap between the late teenager who decides to alienate himself from the church or the community."

"There will be a dynamic relationship between all disciplines of a life-style and the school will be unique in combining many concerns in teaching and living for a total awareness. There is a combined purpose in involving parents, community and religion," Johnson said.

Besides this, "it will prepare potential youths in the more technical fields and professions in giving expert college preparation," State Secretary of Commerce Clifford L. Jones of Harrisburg pointed out.

The incident was discovered Tuesday morning when Mrs. Joanne Jerken, the homeroom teacher, unlocked the room when she arrived at school.

Police believe the incident occurred sometime between 11 p.m. Monday and 7:50 a.m. Tuesday.

The Molotov Cocktails were made from two empty quart beer bottles, gasoline, kerosene or fuel oil and a rag for a wick were contained inside.

The exact contents used in the two bombs at the high school are unknown at present. However, police have taken the broken parts of the bottles and will have them fingerprinted and lab tests run to determine what fluid was used for certain.

Police said they have several suspects but would not discuss the identity.

The window kicked in is on the east side of the building where the gym and old high school join.

School officials were concerned about the incident but the big problem for them Tuesday was re-scheduling classes which used the damaged classroom.

Samuel O. Wells III, assistant superintendent, said, "We need all the class rooms we have now and when something like this happens we are at a disadvantage as we must reschedule all classes which use disabled classroom."

Sterba is accused of stealing five payroll checks from Honeymoon Haven, where he had been employed until fired, making them out and cashing them.

The checks were made out to him and signed by James Moore. Four of the five checks cleared the bank. The fifth was checked and the bank refused payment due to the signature on the check not being the correct one according to their records.

The checks was made in the amount of $81, $112, $93, $171, and $101.

Molotov Cocktails pitched in window

STROUDSBURG — What might have been a catastrophe at Stroudsburg High School turned out to be an incident which caused an estimated $35 damage, Stroudsburg Borough Police said Tuesday.

Two Molotov Cocktails were thrown into a classroom in the basement of the old section of the high school. One landed on a plastic seat of a desk and burned, the other on the floor and burned.

The bomb that landed on the seat caused the red plastic to melt and drip to the floor. The fire also damaged the desk and several pieces of tile on the floor.

The incident came in the midst of bomb scares which have been plaguing area schools in recent times.

The other fire bomb burned on the floor and damaged several pieces of tile in that area. The blaze also caused some smoke damage to the desk in the same area.

School officials said the room would have to be repainted and several desks replaced or repaired.

Police said the bombs were thrown in a basement window after an unknown person or group of people kicked in the window and then dropped the bombs into the room.

The incident was discovered Tuesday morning when Mrs. Joanne Jerken, the homeroom teacher, unlocked the room when she arrived at school.

Police believe the incident occurred sometime between 11 p.m. Monday and 7:50 a.m. Tuesday.

Mrs. Jago's troubles pile up

BANGOR — The Internal Revenue Service has filed a federal tax lien against Mrs. Mildred W. Jago and her husband, Dr. Herbert H. Jago of 318 Market St., Bangor.

Mrs. Jago is currently free on bail and is awaiting grand jury action on charges of embezzling $301,000 from the Bangor Cooperative Savings and Loan Assn.

The tax lien, filed in Northampton County Court, shows Dr. and Mrs. Jago owe $11,939 in taxes due in 1962 and $2,606 for 1963.

"The tax lien was filed by the Allentown office of the Internal Revenue Service."

Northampton County District Attorney Charles Spaziani said last week that Mrs. Jago had owed about $100,000 in back income taxes but had remitted that amount.

The IRS agents in Allentown refused to comment on the $100,000 apparently owed and paid, but stated that the Northampton County Courthouse should be checked for any tax liens.

The liens had not been filed last week and the prothonotary's office had no past record of such a filing.

The current tax lien action of the accumulated amount of $14,545.96 was filed in the courthouse Monday.

The tax lien joins a $108,821.49 judgment note signed by Mrs. Jago last November 25. The note apparently is the receipt from the sale of an insurance company owned by Mrs. Jago. The note had been made out in favor of the Bangor Cooperative Savings and Loan Assn.

Mrs. Jago was formally charged with embezzling the $301,000 last Wednesday.

Ex-employee held on check counts

STROUDSBURG — George Sterba of 219 Winters Ave., West Hazleton, is in Monroe County Jail in default of $2,500 bail on charges of forgery, uttering bank checks, and defrauding an innkeeper.

Sterba is accused of stealing five payroll checks from Honeymoon Haven, where he had been employed until fired, making them out and cashing them.

The checks were made out to him and signed by James Moore. Four of the five checks cleared the bank. The fifth was checked and the bank refused payment due to the signature on the check not being the correct one according to their records.

The checks was made in the amount of $81, $112, $93, $171, and $101.

State Police from Stroudsburg were called and the building evacuated. A search was made and no trace of a bomb was found in either building.

Delval sports in 4th

EAST STROUDSBURG — Delaware Valley overcame a 16-point deficit Tuesday night to hand East Stroudsburg its first setback of the season, 67-63.

Forced to play without 6-4 junior Matt Hood, the Cavaliers were beaten off the board, 50-41, but capitalized on sloppy ball handling by Delval.

The winners lost the ball 23 times in the first half but only nine times in the second half as they outscored the Cavs 38-25 in the final 16 minutes.

East Stroudsburg (2-1) held the lead from the minutes of the opening period until the four minute mark of the fourth when Delval took a 60-59 lead.

Tom Kishbaugh, who led all scorers with 32 points, then earned two fouls to give Eastburg its final lead of the night.

With 3:40 left Craig Smith hit from the field to give the visitors a 62-61 lead and they were never headed.

However with four seconds left to play and the Cavs trailing, 65-63 they had a chance to tie the score. But Don Fritz missed his first foul try with the one and one in effect. Ken Ogradnick grabbed the rebound, was fouled and made both attempts with two seconds to play to produce the final spread.

Ogradnick led the winners (2-2) with 22 points while Smith added 18 and Rich Lillis 15.

Kishbaugh had 13 points in the first period, 5 in the second, 10 in the third and only three in the fourth. Jim Waller, with 12, was the only other Cav in twin figures.

Bangor gains 2nd win

STROUDSBURG — A fourth period spurt by Stroudsburg High fell short Tuesday night as Bangor High held on for a 53-50 decision. The Slaters are now 2-1, while the Mounties fell to 1-2.

Stroudsburg took an early 3-0 lead on a driving layup by Jack Marvin and a foul by Dale Marsh.

Larry Ott got Bangor on the board at 6:56 with a foul shot and Marc Blau added two more fouls following a steal.

Marvin hit another jumper to give Stroudsburg a 5-3 lead before Jeff Heard hit a layup and Blau a three-point play to give the Slaters an 8-5 lead.

Bangor got its next five points from the foul line before Blau added another three-point play to put the Slaters on top 16-9 with 1:34 left in the period.

A layup by Dave Crane was matched by two fouls by Ott as Bangor took an 18-11 lead after eight minutes.

Fouls by Denny Lowe and Mike Ruggiero and a two-point by Ott gave Bangor a 22-11 lead at the start of the second period.

Then Marsh hit twice from the 15 foot stripe and Scott Young scored from inside to close the gap to 22-15.

Bangor led by 10 points at halftime 33-23 and still had a 10-point lead as the fourth period started.

At one time the Mounties close the gap to 39-31 on back-to-back baskets by Marvin and Weber. But Blau and Ruggiero matched those baskets and Bangor again had a 10-point spread.

Stroudsburg then came alive in the final period and a field goal by Marsh cut Bangor's lead to 51-44. Mel Abel then scored from inside to cut the deficit 51-46.

Bangor's Ridge Hughes then missed a pair of fouls and Abel again hit from inside to make it 51-49 with 1:40 left. Marsh came up with a big steal and Dave Crane made one foul with 1:02 left.

Hughes again missed from the foul line and each team lost the ball without getting off a shot. Ruggiero then calmly made two fouls with 20 seconds left to give the Slaters 53-49 lead.

One of two fouls by Marsh with 10 seconds left closed out the scoring.

Blau led the winners with 19 points while Heard finished with 12. Marsh was the only Mountie in double figures with 16.

In the preliminary game the Stroudsburg High reserves raced to a 70-30 decision as Craig Potcher netted 20, Mike Wells 19 and Dave Cook 12. Baker had 12 for the losers.

Frazier still champion; gives Bonavena whipping

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Joe Frazier, the Philadelphia butcher boy working with porterhouse efficiency, sloughed off a barrage of low blows Tuesday night to live up to his promise to give awkward Oscar Bonavena a good whipping and retain his share of the heavyweight title with a unanimous 15-round decision.

From the opening bell, neither fighter backed up an inch as they pummeled each other with vicious blows. But it was F

FEBRUARY

The sensible insane Christmas gift.

Okay. You've decided to spend $1799 on your wife's Christmas present this year. You're absolutely out of your mind, but you love her.

Well, if you're going to go this crazy, try to be a little practical about it.

Of course, we're in the business, but we can hardly think of a more practical way to spend $1799* than on a Volkswagen.

After your initial investment, you'll be saving money all the way. On gas—the VW uses about a gallon every 27 miles. On tires—one set will take you far, young man. And on antifreeze—it doesn't use any ever.

Then there's another thing to consider. This is a Christmas present you'll use, too. Which doesn't make the VW completely unique.

But an electric train won't take you down to the corner for a pack of cigarettes.

County accident rate high

(Special to The Record)
STROUDSBURG — Do residents of Monroe County lead safer or more hazardous lives than people in other localities? Are they more liable or less liable to meet with an accident of some sort — automobile or otherwise — in a given year?

According to a government survey, just released, local people seem to be somewhat more accident-prone than the average.

The general accident record locally is viewed alongside that of other communities. It is based upon data compiled by the U. S. Public Health Service, in connection with its annual vital statistics survey, and by the National Safety Council.

The findings are of special interest at this time because of the mounting concern over the high accident rate in the United States. The figures show that nearly 11 million people suffered injuries during the past year that disabled them for more than one day. Some 39 million others received minor injuries.

According to the survey, there were 24 fatal accidents among Monroe County residents during the year ending January 1, 1967, with motor vehicles responsible for 15 of them.

And, for each fatal one, there were nearly 100 others that did not result in loss of life.

Taken into account were all types of accidents in which local people were involved, wherever they occurred. Not

Some area homes lack plumbing

Record Harrisburg Bureau
HARRISBURG — Plumbing apparently is not an "out-and-out" proposition in Monroe County — or at least this seems to be the story in the county according to latest reports covering characteristics in Pennsylvania.

For example, of the 19,150 housing units in the county, 78.7 per cent are classified as having "sound plumbing" — and is in line with the statewide average of 78.7 per cent, reports the State Department of Commerce.

Of the 19,150 housing units in Monroe County, 12,112 are classified as occupied by one or more persons, with 67.6 per cent owner-occupied. Average value of these owner-occupied housing units in the county is listed as $11,000 — that is, the price asked for the property or estimate of what it would sell for on the market.

This applies to properties containing only one housing unit and without a business — trailers are excluded.

As a point of interest, 13.7 per cent of Monroe County's housing units are in the category of vacant rental units such as summer cottages, etc. where the occupants are temporarily absent. Monroe County is one of the resort area counties in the state.

Everyday modern conveniences are indeed enjoyed by county residents, according to the department.

To illustrate: clothes washing machines are housed in 86.8 per cent of all occupied housing units in Monroe County, 27 per cent have one or more freezers, and 5.3 per cent are blessed with air conditioners (for seasonal comfort).

On the communications end, 84.2 per cent of all housing units in Monroe County have telephones available, along with 91.5 per cent viewing one or more television sets, while 63.6 per cent of these housing units enjoy one radio set, and two or more radio sets are heard in 29.0 per cent of the units.

Another one time luxury and now an almost dire necessity: 62.7 per cent of the county's occupied housing units have at least one automobile — while two or more autos are maintained in 24.4 per cent of these housing units.

Retail sales holding up

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks turned lower Tuesday as initial strength faded amid normal evening-up pressures prior to another paper-work holiday Wednesday. Trading was brisk. Traders apparently viewed the price rollbacks in plywood as bearish, although the reductions were not widespread. Some early demand came from the generally encouraging news background. Retail sales were said to be holding up well, and were expected to continue heavy through the remainder of the holiday season. Price hikes by two of the nation's major steel firms enabled steel issues to show scattered strength after retreating in the previous session. U.S. Steel, the No. 1 producer, increased prices of long term sheets, used primarily for automobile gasoline tanks, while National Steel boosted prices on continuous hot-dip galvanized sheets.

Traders continued to pay close attention to the maneuvering in the Vietnam talks at Paris, where United States diplomats met in secret session with North Vietnam representatives. After a two-hour meeting, officials said procedural differences were still unresolved and there was little likelihood that expanded talks would start soon. The UPI stock market indicator showed a loss of 0.05 per cent on 1,609 issues traded. Declines topped advances—747 to 643. There were 101 new highs and 10 new lows. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrials dipped 1.67 to 977.89. DJ utilities also gave ground, but rails moved forward. The New York Stock Exchange index mirrored a loss of nine cents in the average common share price. Turnover was 14,500,000 compared with 15,800,000 shares on Monday. Getty Oil topped the list of 15 most active issues, losing 1/4 to 85 3/4 on 569,900 shares, including a block of 534,400 at 85 in a cross transaction. General Electric dropped 3/4

Everybody's Business E.S. High graduate law firm member

EAST STROUDSBURG — Attorney F. Paul Laubner, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Laubner, Sr., East Stroudsburg, Pa., has recently become an associate with the law firm of Butz, Hudders and Tallman in Allentown.

Laubner is a graduate of East Stroudsburg High School's class of 1957. He was graduated from Gettysburg College in 1961, and upon graduation enrolled in the Naval Officers' Candidate School and was commissioned an Ensign in the United States Navy. He served aboard the aircraft carrier, USS Independence (CVA-62) for three and one-half years.

During a part of this tour of active duty, the ship was engaged in operations off the coast of Vietnam. Laubner was a recipient of the Navy Commendation Medal and the Thomas S. Gates Award as the outstanding junior officer aboard the USS Independence for the year of 1965. Upon completion of his tour of active duty, he enrolled in Dickinson School of Law, Carlisle, from which he was graduated in June of 1968.

Laubner was married in 1965 to the former Eleanor Lynn Pascoe, who is presently teaching pre-kindergarten aged children at the Horne School under Title One of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

Honor for Deutsch
ALLENTOWN — Deutsch Homes has been selected as the first Lehigh Valley recipient of the General Electric Company's "Award of Community Progress."

The naming of Deutsch for this honor was announced by William G. Hewitt, G.E. contract sales representative. Hewitt said that the award is for "continued achievement in the building industry, excellence in planning and design and an outstanding contribution to the development and maintenance of better building techniques."

Recreation at new high
STROUDSBURG — Public recreation reached a new high in popularity during the 1968 season, judging from the experience of Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. The utility maintains public parks on lands surrounding its hydroelectric installations at Lake Wallenpaupack in the Poconos and Lake Aldred on the Lower Susquehanna River.

Robert C. Zundel, PP&L's manager-real estate, said attendance figures for both locations show a sharp upturn in tent and trailer camping and in power plant tours, the only activities where accurate counts are possible.

However, day-to-day estimates made by park officials throughout the season indicate record numbers also participated in other activities such as picnicking, boating, water skiing, fishing, hiking and sightseeing.

3rd & McConnell St., Stroudsburg

Miss Charlotte R. Ayers of Stroudsburg has served as the organizing force for the local SPCA, especially since its reorganization in the fall of 1962. Miss Ayers has supported the Society since 1952 and has served as president since 1966. Miss Ayers said there is a great need to find people to give some time to the operations of the SPCA. There is a need to explore and carry out ideas to raise funds for a proposed new shelter.

Mrs. Sally Repsher of East Stroudsburg is on the roster of active supporting members of the Society. She is an ardent lover and fancier of pet cats and sometimes dogs, too. She comforts a curious and timid newcomer to the shelter headquarters on Foxtown Hill. The new tenant, though hopefully temporary, is witnessing many changes in environment and care at the shelter under the direction of Mrs. Mary Hopke, shelter manager, and Fred Mutchler, shelter agent.

SPCA to sponsor Santa's gift shop

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will be performing a double service starting today, as a responsibility to its operation and as an added interest in the community.

The event will start with the opening of the annual SPCA Santa Shop today at 10 a.m. and each day, Thursday and Friday until 8 p.m. and Saturday until 2 p.m.

The Shop is located at 810 Main St., Stroudsburg, opposite the YMCA building. It will offer novelty and useful items for everyone including pets: toys for pets and children; gift items of jewelry and ceramics and other handcrafted items; a thrift shop will offer useful clothing items, specializing in aprons

Christmas decorations and ornaments.

Also, calendars for 1969 which will feature children's drawings which were selected during a national poster contest by the American Human Society reflecting "be kind to animals."

A three-foot doll is being offered as a prize. All items will be tax-free.

The Society is exploring other means of getting funds to support plans for a new shelter unit which will be used to house animals ready for adoption while the present unit will be used as an isolation and admission unit to examine and treat sick or injured animals. This is in addition to increased costs in maintaining shelter services.

Mrs. Lawrence Lambert of Stroudsburg, does her bit as treasurer of the Society. The operating budget for this year was more than $12,000 and for 1969 will probably run $15,000. Expenses start to mount each time an animal is brought into the shelter and a service call is made. An animal is immediately examined and treated if needed for sickness, injury and or malnutrition. The only paid employee is the shelter agent.

John R. Kistler of Kistler Printing Co., East Stroudsburg, assists in the regular pickup of donated food items from local markets, as a member of the shelter committee. Donation Food Barrels are located in Stroudsburg Acme Market, IGA Store, Giant Market and A & P Store.

Shelter Agent Fred Mutchler places personal dedication and firmness in management as priority factors in running the shelter as a successful business besides as a rehabilitation and care center for potential pet animals. He is making every effort to make the best animal available for adoption according to an individual's taste and choice.
